IAPTC-IAPROL MOUs Professional Development Brief

Submitted by Christine McCurriston

Introduction to the IAPTC

The International Association of Peacekeeping Training Centres is an open and voluntary association of individuals, centres, institutions and programmes dealing with peacekeeping research, education and training.

The IAPTC promotes better understanding of peacekeeping, its goals, objectives and of the methods used in training for peacekeeping operations of all types. It will broaden contacts between and among various international organizations, peacekeeping training centres and institutions, Universities and other interested groups, thus leading to more effective peacekeeping.

Functions of the IAPTC

- Annual Meeting
- IAPTC Newsletter/Web site
- Publications
- Seminars

The Secretariat

The Pearson Peacekeeping Centre holds the secretariat of the IAPTC. The secretariat is tasked with providing the IAPTC newsletter, annual reports and maintenance of the web site.

General

As outlined in the first paragraph, the concept of the IAPTC was designed to offer peacekeeping training centres (of various types and models) a forum for discussions relating to training without having to represent national interests (and sometimes restrictions). Each year, there is an annual meeting with the host organization responsible for hosting the event and the theme and agenda.

During the first few years, the membership grew to more than 400 members. In actual fact, these are figures generated from a “mailing list” rather than an actual “membership request” list. It was recommended by the secretariat that the IAPTC consider separating the membership into two categories: Peacekeeping Training Centres and individuals. There are approximately 64 training centers around the world (see attached list). Although there are individuals who wish to maintain a membership, this is an issue that should be decided by the organization as a whole.
Accomplishments thus far:

- There have been seven annual meetings of the IAPTC:
  1. 1995 - Inaugural meeting hosted by the PPC.
  2. 1996 - Scuola Superiore S. Anna, Pisa, Italy
  3. 1997 - Foundation for International Studies, Valletta, Malta
  4. 1998 - Norwegian Institute of International Affairs, Oslo, Norway
  5. 1999 - PPC
  6. 2000 - ACCORD, South Africa
  7. 2001 - United Nations University, Tokyo, Japan

- There is an IAPTC web site. <IATPC.org> The site is maintained by the secretariat (PPC) and holds documents resulting from annual meetings, secretariat reports, the articles of association and links to other sites of interest.

- There has been one publication (The CIVPOL Planning Guide) produced and made available electronically (as well as hard copy) by the IAPTC.

- During the first 5 years, there was a newsletter published three times per year. This was compiled, edited, published, and circulated by the secretariat. Although the secretariat has agreed to publish and distribute the newsletter, due to the lack of submissions, there has not been a newsletter since the autumn of 2000.

The future of the IAPTC

There have been no serious discussions regarding the future of the IAPTC, but there have been discussions about the intended nature of the organization and whether or not it has been realized. There is a revitalization paper posted on the web site that resulted from the annual meeting of 2000, but none of the recommendations have been implemented thus far.

It is my opinion that if the PPC were to withdraw its membership and secretariat support, the organization would cease to exist after a year or so. Without a clear mandate and committed leadership, the IAPTC will not have the clout to be taken seriously by any nation or stakeholder in the peacekeeping realm.

Dear Professor De Guttry:

Thank you so much for your letter describing your upcoming project entitled "The Management of Quality in Education and Training Centres: A Process of Training, Research and Experimentation in an Emerging Area of International Activity".

Your comments regarding the IAPTC having recently becoming involved in the process of certification and accreditation is correct and it is a topic that will be discussed during the 6th Annual Meeting next month in South Africa.

You are most welcome to attend the meeting. Registration information is available from the IAPTC website at: www.iaptc.org

I accept your offer to have an IAFTC representative as a member of your Independant Committee and will provide you with a name in the near future. Could you provide me with a bit more detail as to what the roll of the committee would be?

I am looking forward to this project and working together with the Scuola Superiore Sant'Anna of Pisa.

Sincerely,
Christine Vroom

19 April 2000

Dear Ms. Vroom,

As you may know, since its establishment in 1995, the International Training Programme for Conflict Management of the Scuola Superiore Sant’Anna of Pisa (Italy) has been working in the area of training of civilian personnel to be employed in peace-keeping and humanitarian operations.

The Scuola Superiore Sant’Anna is currently leading a Project entitled: “The Management of Quality in Education and Training Centres: A Process of Training, Research and Experimentation in an Emerging Area of International Activity”.

The Institute for the International Law of Peace and Armed Conflict at Ruhr University Bochum and the Human Rights Centre at the University of Essex are our partners in this Project.

The Project, which is due to start in one month time, intends to respond to the need of promoting a growing capacity within the managers and operators of training organisations in order to enrich, diversity and qualify the supply of training actions. The Project is conceived to focus on the training of civilian personnel to be employed in peace-keeping and humanitarian operations, considered as a very interesting application and experimentation case. The Local Government of Tuscany Region has endorsed the Project and decided to support it financially.

We know that the IAPTC has recently started working on certification and accreditation, and is exchanging experience and results. In this sense, I would be extremely interested in developing forms of interaction and cooperation. To this purpose, I would be pleased if you would like to delegate an official representative of the IAPTC as member of the “Independent Committee” which will be set in the framework of the Project for the validation of the Project itself, the interaction between the Project managers, the participation in information and dissemination actions and the endorsement of the results.

Furthermore, I believe that the IAPTC meeting that will be held in June in South Africa could be a very good occasion to present our project and to discuss with other IAPTC members about quality, accreditation and certification.

Looking forward to your reaction,

Yours sincerely,

The Sant'Anna School of University Studies and Doctoral Research is a public institution for university whose aims are to promote and advance scientific knowledge both through university study and also through doctoral research.

The Sant'Anna School upholds the time-honoured and illustrious traditions of colleges that preceded it, admitting students of Faculties not present in the Scuola Normale Superiore of Pisa which provides the model for regulations governing the School’s teaching activities and community life.

The traditional goal of the School is to train gifted young scholars for scientific research and the teaching profession. An eloquent testimony of this tradition is afforded by the great number of university professors of the University of Pisa and other Italian and foreign universities who are former students of the School. The School also has a longstanding record of devoting particular attention to the labor market as a whole, represented by public bodies and firms, since these, together with an academic career, constitute the natural outlets for its graduates.

Peacekeeping Training Courses Database

Why this database?

The UN General Assembly, in its resolution 46/48 of 9 Dec 91 (paragraph 10), requested the Secretary General to collect information on peacekeeping training and similar activities and further requested him to issue a list based on national submissions and to bring it up to date regularly. In pursuance of this request, a Peacekeeping Training Courses Database was initiated by the Training Unit of the Department of Peacekeeping Operations. Over the years since, hard-copies of the updated data had been made available to all who requested. These had also been distributed to all Member States periodically, as well as to fellow peacekeepers worldwide, through the many United Nations Training Assistance Teams (UNTAT) activities. With the increasing use of computers and the Internet worldwide, it is now timely to have this database readily available on the Internet.

Data collection

The data contained herein has been obtained primarily from official replies of Member States, through their Permanent Missions to the United Nations. It is the collation from our periodic requests for updates to all Member States, and from our checks and updates with fellow peacekeepers worldwide through meetings at UNTAT seminars, UNTAT training & activities, and through the course of our daily work. We continue to request your updates in the spirit of sharing and contributing to peacekeeping throughout our world.

Argentina's Contribution to Peacekeeping

1. Since 1991, Argentina has been actively contributing to peacekeeping. Since then, this contribution has increased with Army, Navy and Air Force contingents, naval forces and aircrafts, demanding peacekeepers' specialized and unified training. The Argentinian Peacekeeping Academy (CAECOPAZ) was created on 27 June 1995 and the Academy conducts a number of peacekeeping courses and training for both its national troops and participation from foreign countries. The CAECOPAZ is located at the Campo de Mayo garrison, 20 km far from Buenos Aires city, the capital of Argentina. All the instructors have previous experience in UN Peacekeeping Operations. The courses are conducted in Spanish and the course curriculums follow the guidelines of the UN DPKO. The courses are also opened for international participation.

2. The institutions that conduct or coordinat peacekeeping training:

   • TRAINING CENTRE FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS (CENCAMEX)
   • Argentine Joint Peacekeeping Training Centre (Annual Training & Courses / Seminars for year 2001)
   • CAECOPAZ

3. To date, these Courses have been attended by students from the following countries:

   • Argentina.
   • Belgium.
   • Bolivia.
   • Brazil.
   • Canada.
   • Denmark.
   • Ecuador.
   • El Salvador.
   • Great Britain.

Australia currently has two institutions that conduct or coordinate Peacekeeping Training. These are the Australian Defence Force Peacekeeping Centre (ADFPKC) and the Deployed Forces Support Units (DFSU).

1. The Australian Defence Force Peacekeeping Centre is located at RAAF Base Williamtown, NSW, The function of the Centre is to develop and manage Peace Operations Doctrine and Training. Its roles are to:

- act as a repository for peace operations expertise and experience,
- monitor international peace operations issues,
- assist ADF units and individuals train for Peace Operations,
- develop doctrine, procedures and tactics for Peace Operations, and
- represent the ADF on Peace Operations matters at seminars, conferences and the like.

The ADFPKC conducts an annual two week International Peacekeeping Seminar (IPKS) to familiarise selected personnel from within the Australian Defence Force, Department of Defence, other Government and Non-Government agencies plus civilian and military personnel from regional nations, with the United Nations, Peace Operations and the factors affecting national participation. The IPKS this year is to be held from 15 to 26 October 2001.

Other training and activities include pre-deployment training on UN and Mission specific topics for individuals and small contingents of ADF and Australian Police personnel. The PKC does not provide training to formed units deploying which is the responsibility of those unit commanders. The PKC can however, advise commanders on what training should be conducted prior to deployment.

The PKC also provides/coordinates UN and Peace Operations training at Australian and overseas defence Staff Colleges.

1. In Austria, pre-mission training for Austrian soldiers initially commenced in 1960, in conjunction with the first deployment for ONUC. A rather small and limited element for administration and training within a standard military was used to manage voluntary contributions of troops to UN peacekeeping. Responding to ever increasing demands, in 1987 an Austrian Training Centre for Peacekeeping Operations was established as a special unit under the direct command of Inspector General of the Austrian Armed Forces. The Centre conducts several programmes available also to international students. The Austrian Training Centre is located at Camp VAN SWIETEN in the 21st District in the Northern part of the city. The mandate of the Centre was as follows:

- Pre-deployment training of Austrian contingents;
- Peacekeeping-related training for key personnel;
- National and international training assistance;
- Supply of Austrian Peacekeeping contingents by land, sea and air.

2. With the changing trends and developments in international peacekeeping, the Austrian Ministry of Defence established a special unit under the direct command of the Chief of Defence Staff of the Austrian Armed Forces: The Austrian International Peace Support Command (aIPSC).

3. The Austrian International Peace Support Command (aIPSC) takes over the mandate from the former Austrian Training Centre for Peacekeeping Operations from Jan 99. The Command conducts the following courses which are open to international students:

- Staff Officers Course for Peacekeeping/Peace Support Operations (SOC-PKO/PSO);
- Military Observer Course for Peacekeeping/Peace Support Operations (MOC-PKO/PSO);
- Military Police Course for Peacekeeping/Peace Support Operations for both Officers and NCOs (MPC-PKO/PSO);
- Officers Course for Peacekeeping/Peace Support Operations (OC-PKO/PSO);
- Civil Military Cooperation Course for Peacekeeping/Peace Support Operations for Officers (CIMIC-PKO/PSO).

4. There is another centre in Austria that conducts Peacekeeping training. This is the Austrian Study Centre for Peace and Conflict Resolution (ASPR) which conducts the following courses:

- Human Rights Protection (IPT) - (specialized course);
- Information Dissemination (IPT) - (specialized course);
- Intern Civilian Peacekeeping Training - (foundation course);
- Mediation (IPT) - (specialized course); and 10/11/2001

• Post Conflict Reconstruction (IPT) - (specialized course).

5. The Austrian NBC-Defence School in Vienna is the third centre in Austria that conducts Peacekeeping training. The courses they conduct there are:

• UN Civil-Military Cooperation Basic Course;
• UN Civil-Military Cooperation Staff Course;

The courses are open to participation from foreign governments. Due to limited capacity, please check with the contact given below on availability and datelines.

6. Peacekeeping Training for Police Officers.

Peacekeeping Training Institution

Peacekeeping School of Zambakro

1. Mission

   The mission of the Peacekeeping School is to train African executives and military experts to master perfectly some techniques for their preparation and participation to peacekeeping operations planned by an international organizations under the mandate of UNO. Open not only to west African countries, participates can come from African countries including English speaking or Portuguese speaking countries and there is no ideological and sociological linguistic, discrimination.

2. Objectives

   a. General objectives

      • To teach African Officers international rules, procedures, skills, operational tactics necessary to peacekeeping operations.

      • To provide a training acknowledged by UN essentially practical and realistic with lessons drawn from the case studies of recent peacekeeping operations. The training is delivered by French and African instructors who have very good experiences of such operations throughout the continent.

      • To have many African officers perfectly apt to participate efficiently to all types of PKOs. So the objective of the School is to organise training of high standard with 180 to 200 trainees each year.

      • To open the School to all African countries without social-cultural, language, and ideological discrimination allowing experience exchange and the reinforcement of good relations between African nations by the means of their respective armies, contributing factors to regional stability.

      • To stimulate African countries to deploy officers trained with the same doctrine.

      • To develop trainees moral ethics.

   b. Training objectives

      • To analyse clearly the political, sociological, cultural and economical environment of an operation so as to have a better understanding of the causes of the conflict.

      • To give to the trainees a larger knowledge of the structures, principles, rules, conduct and procedures of the UN and of its charter with a focus on chap.VI, VII, VIII, and other International organisations so as to check their capacities and to know how one can interpret and execute UN mandate.

      • To teach the trainees how to identify, understand, respect and control the parties during a conflict (international organisations, belligerents, legal and political authorities, religious and military authorities, NGOs, press, etc.)

      • To point out the importance of International humanitarian laws and Human laws in the conduct of PKOs.

      • To be well integrated in the local environment, establish and have contacts so as to foresee and react with a subtle approach towards any incident and fully fulfil one mission.

      • To allow trainees to be familiar to any kind of peace operations (peacekeeping, restoration, supporting) so as to take suitable measures for the commandment, to supply of forces deployed and to set the tasks which will allow to achieve the mission of observer.

To exchange with the trainees experiences drawn from previous PKOs and the process of prevention, management and settlement of conflicts.

New Zealand

1. The New Zealand Defence Force (NZDF) provides training for all NZDF personnel to be deployed to United Nations operations. Personnel for United Nations operations are selected from the New Zealand Regular Army. The training is modified to suit each mission and is based on the training for previous missions of a similar nature. Training is co-ordinated by HQ Land Command, New Zealand.

2. The high standard of generic professional training enables the NZDF to conduct a compact but thorough training regime for UN and non-UN peacekeeping missions. Peacekeeping modules are incorporated into the various officer and non-commissioned officer promotion courses. Pre-deployment UN training is provided to officers, military units and military observers destined for United Nations peacekeeping operations. Despite slight training modifications for each specific mission, NZDF commitments require participants to undergo training in the following areas:

- General military and medical issues;
- Theater preparation (courses on geography, climate, culture, history and politics of the operation);
- UN Guidelines for Standard Operating Procedures and the decision-making process;
- Mine-awareness;
- Stress-management; and
- Physical fitness.

3. All members of a UN operation are assembled in Wellington or Waiouru for the pre-deployment training phase.

Courses conducted by the New Zealand Defence Force for peacekeeping are:

- Military Observer Training.
- Contingent Training.

In Sweden, there are two centres that conduct peacekeeping training and courses. These are:

- The Swedish Armed Forces International Center (SWEDINT)
- The Swedish National Defence College (FHS)

SWEDINT's task is to recruit, equip, train and support Swedish and foreign personnel for military and humanitarian assignments worldwide and offers national, Nordic and international groups the opportunity to update their knowledge of the latest peacekeeping practices. The Centre is involved in the development of special equipment for international units and participates in national and international development of peacekeeping activities. SWEDINT is also engaged in extensive transport and travel operations and the procurement of special equipment adapted to the needs of various missions. It co-ordinates Swedish participation in the Joint Nordic Community for Military Matters (NordsamFN) and is also engaged in humanitarian missions using resources made available by SWEDRELF*.

*SWEDRELF is a foreign aid force capable of deployment for reconstruction and rehabilitation at very short notice.

1. SWEDINT conducts the following courses:

- Budgetary Processes and Control;

2. The Swedish National Defence College (FHS). The College conducts the following peacekeeping training courses:

- Exercise Georgeland.
  The three fundamental aims of Exercise GEORGE LAND are to make the participants understand and accept the political dimension of peace support operations, the leadership cooperation necessary to make an international peace support operation a success, and the interdependence of the parties involved in the operation - diplomats, military and civilian police, mass media, non-governmental organisations, humanitarian and human rights agencies, and host nations.

- International Seminar Week
  The purpose of the International Seminar Week is:
  - To understand the system of cooperation and discussions between politicians, civilian authorities and non-governmental organisations;
  - To give the participants a broad view of aspects relating to peace-supporting missions from the perspectives of the UN and the participating nations; and
  - To learn from experiences of past UN missions.

Both the exercise and seminar are open to foreign Governments.

Ukraine

Ukraine's Contribution to Peacekeeping

1. In the Ukraine, to coordinate all NATO-related and peacekeeping activities of Ukrainian MID, the Partnership for Peace and Peacekeeping Operations Coordination Centre of the Ukrainian General Staff was established on 4 Oct.97. This Centre serves the "Partnership for Peace Programme" by offering Ukrainian MoD, in close cooperation with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, National Security Council, the opportunity to take part in European military and peacekeeping activities.

2. The main functions of the Centre are:

- to ensure Ukrainian participation in PfP activities;
- to plan and control PfP activities for Departments and Services of the MoD;
- to collaborate with the Government, Parliament in issuing PfP and peacekeeping regulations;
- to select and to train Ukrainian peacekeeping personnel;
- to maintain the operational stand-by of Ukrainian peacekeeping units.

3. Officers of the PfP & PKO CC conduct regular Peacekeeping courses for individuals - candidates to the Ukrainian contingents in UN missions. Duration of the course is three weeks, number of attendees vary from 25 to 30. Candidates are selected from all services and branches of the Armed Forces according to their voluntarily made decision to serve in peacekeeping units and good English proficiency. A programme of the course includes the language training providing by native speakers of English - teachers from English Teaching Project for Ukraine, and briefings, syndicate work and exercises conducting by officers of PKO Division of the Centre. The Center trains personnel to be UN military observers, staff officers, military policemen and interpreters.

4. The Ukrainian Peacekeepers Veterans Association work in close contact with PfP&PKO CC to establishing INTERPEACENET- Ukraine, and the regional training centre to prepare contingent for peacekeeping and emergency relief operations. This International Peacekeeping Network (INTERPEACENET-Ukraine) was established by the BAST Promotion Fund,UPVA , PfP&PKO CC in cooperation with the Ukrainian government and NGO's research institutions. It is a non-governmental interdisciplinary research institution (on-line) which provides analytical and informational support to the highest bodies of executive and legislative power in Ukraine on a wide range of political, economic, legal, defence and social issues related to nationals security in the strategic context. The INTERPEACENET-Ukraine (on-line) also co-ordinates research activities ofs research institutions and analytical centres related to national and foreign policy and security. The main directions of research are:

- national security;

10/11/2001
• defence peacekeeping policy;
• foreign peacekeeping policy and security;
• social and political development of Ukraine, Russia, CIS;
• socio-economic strategies;
• regional affairs;
• environmental security;
• modelling and evaluation of the issues related to national security;
• development of informational internetworking technologies and informational environment analysis.

5. Forms of activities include:

• conducting research;
• elaborating research-based recommendations and development strategies for INTERPEACENET,
• co-ordination of research activities of scientific institutions and research centres related to national security;
• organisation and conducting scientific conferences and seminars;
• publishing research papers and monographs;
• co-operation with international institutions and individual scholars;
• providing information services.

6. INTERPEACENET-Ukraine executes its various research activity in the form of projects. Analytical reports are published within the framework of research projects. Leading specialists from universities, analytical centres, and state bodies are invited to discuss these reports. Research co-ordination is done through exchange of information and joint meetings of our staff with researchers from other institutions. International conferences and seminars are also of great importance in our research activity.

7. Scientific contacts: The INTERPEACENET-Ukraine views scientific contacts with various research institutions and individual scholars to be an indispensable part of its research activity. Good working relations have been established with numerous state bodies, research institutions and universities in Ukraine. Regular contacts are also maintained with a number of leading foreign research centres and institutions.

United Kingdom

1. In the United Kingdom, military personnel receive United Nations peacekeeping training under the auspices of the Ministry of Defence. The United Kingdom draws its peacekeeping personnel from regular service units with high standards of military training, which require only mission-specific packages as further training at various Ministry of Defence establishments, including staff colleges. Pre-deployment military training is now conducted principally at the Army's Combined Arms Training Center, Warminster, on behalf of all three services.

2. During Initial Officer Training, all three services provide a general brief introduction to the United Nations and its peacekeeping operations. At the Joint Services Command and Staff College, peacekeeping is a topic regularly covered in the curriculum of their courses. Detailed studies are undertaken in peacekeeping, conflict resolution, humanitarian assistance, command and control strategy and operation. Peace Support Operation is now a subject regularly chosen by students for major courses.

3. The United Kingdom possesses a well-established training programme to cover its commitments to the United Nations peacekeeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP), UNIKOM and the United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO). Officers, staff officers, military observers, and military units earmarked for peacekeeping operations receive pre-deployment training focusing on the following subjects:

- Peacekeeping duties at the Section/Troop level and above;
- Patrolling and observation post duty;
- Crowd control, helicopter surveillance and casualty evacuation;
- Use of night vision equipment, map-reading and first-aid;
- United Nations Guidelines for Standard Operating Procedures;
- Arms training and fighting; and
- Politics, history, culture and language.

4. Specialist training is given, when necessary, to appropriate individuals.

5. Military observers undergo a training course specifically related to the area of operation. The Foreign Office participates in the training of senior military observers by providing specific briefing packages. British peacekeeping training is open to observation by those who participate in similar programmes at other such training facilities.

6. The British Police also participates and assist in international peacekeeping. Currently, British Police officers are attached to the International Police Task Force in Bosnia and Herzegovinia. These officers are drawn from the police forces in England and Wales, although it is intended that future contingents will include officers from the remaining regions of the United Kingdom. The officers undergo a week of intensive training. This is usually held at the Metropolitan Police Training Centre at Hendon and is coordinated by the staff of the Bosnia Liaison Office based in the Home Office, London.

7. In summary, peacekeeping training and courses conducted by the United Kingdom are:

a. Centre for Defence Studies
   - Complex Emergencies, Peace Support Operations*

b. The Combined Arms Training Centre Warminster
   - UN Military Observer Course for UNOMIG, UNIKOM* and Georgia
   - Bosnia Collective Training Package
   - UNFICYP Training Course
   - United Kingdom-Peacekeeping Training Courses for 2001

c. School of Logistics, The Princess Royal Barracks Blackdown
   - UN Logistics Officers Course*

d. The Metropolitan Police Training Centre
   - CIVPOL Course

* These courses are opened to participation from foreign Governments.
